1. Introduction
Work environment and leadership factors play a role in work discipline and employee performance. In the above explanation, work discipline also plays a role in employee performance. Wibowo (2012) and Hasibuan (2011) state that the higher achievement motivation and work discipline is the employee performance will also increase. According to Sedarmayanti (2011), one factor that plays a role in implementation is mental attitude (work motivation, work discipline, work ethics). The mental attitude possessed by an employee will give a role in his account.

From the research results, it can be concluded that work discipline has a significant role in employee performance. Furthermore, in Sumiati Paramban (2018), from the results of the research, it can be concluded that work discipline plays a significant role in employee performance. Physical environmental conditions, the current working environment conditions at the Office of Trade and Industry in Central Mamuju Regency are less comfortable. The environment has a narrow space so that in carrying out work activities, employees are not concentrated due to noise in the narrow room and make the room unheard. Then the workspace, in the workspace arrangement, is very untidy. Judging from the room's irregular structure makes people confused in finding a place to do the activities they do. Based on observations made at the Department of Trade and Industry in Central Mamuju Regency regarding leadership, leaders are still deemed not to approach and motivate their employees directly. They are less successful because the task is not what the administration expected.

Employee discipline is a nation's or people's attitude toward labour. Individuals in the community who see labour as a noble thing for human existence will have a strong work ethic. Conversely, attitudes and perspectives on work as something of poor importance for life will automatically result in a low work ethic. Work ethic is a set of positive behaviours rooted in fundamental beliefs accompanied by a total commitment to an integral work paradigm. According to him, if a person, an organization, or a community adheres to the work paradigm, believes committed to the work paradigm, all of that will give birth to their distinctive work attitudes and behaviours. That will be the Work Ethic and culture. Thus, work discipline is the foundation of authentic success. His study of sociological studies influences this view since the time of Max Weber in the early twentieth century and management writings of the last twenty years, which all lead to one main conclusion; human, especially work behaviour, determine that success in various areas of life. Some people refer to this work behaviour like motivation, habit (habit) and work culture.

The phenomenon related to employees' performance at the Department of Trade and Industry in Central Mamuju Regency is that work is still not running optimally. This can be seen in terms of quality. There are still many employees who do not have the ability according to their field of work. The Trade and Industry Service employees in Central Mamuju Regency still need additional employees to add employees in each section. Coaching for the Office of Trade and Industry employees in Central Mamuju District still needs to be improved.

2. Methods
This research design is a survey, namely analyzing facts and data that support the information needed to support the research discussion in solving and answering the main problems proposed, namely the influence of work ethic and work experience on employee performance through job satisfaction. In this study, there are two categories of data: qualitative data and quantitative data: 1) Qualitative data, that is, data in words, sentences, schemes, and images, such as literature and theories linked to the author's research. The qualitative data in this study constitute a general description of the research object. 2) Quantitative data is information expressed in numerical scale or numbers, such as qualitative data scored (scoring) based on questionnaire responses. This research was designed as survey research (survey research). The approach used in this research is quantitative research. This research was conducted at the Department of Industry and Trade of Central Mamuju Regency. This study's population were all 26 employees of the Department of Industry and Trade of Mamuju Tengah Regency. The data collection techniques used in this research were interviews, a list of questions, and documentation.

This study also supports the results of previous research from Miftachul Mujib (2016), the conclusion that the work environment plays a positive role in employee work discipline. Furthermore, Kristian Dwi Nugroho (2015) conducted... research based on the results of the study. It can be concluded that the work environment has a significant role positive and effective towards work discipline (Nuraini et al., 2019; Umanailo, 2020, 2019). Then research conducted by Tri Wahono (2016), based on the study results, can be concluded that the work environment plays a role in employee work discipline. The work environment's managerial implication for work discipline is obedience and obedience to the workplace's norms and regulations. It is namely by improving the work environment utilizing the work atmosphere, namely the conditions around employees who are doing work that can contribute to the work's implementation. The relationship with co-workers, namely the association with co-workers, is harmonious and without intrigue among fellow workers. The availability of work facilities, namely equipment used to support complete/up-to-date work. Lighting, namely light or lighting, is very beneficial for employees to get safety and smoothness of work and security at work, which is to keep the place and work environment safe.

The goals to be achieved must be clear and ideally set as well as challenging enough for employees' abilities. This means that the purpose (job) assigned to an employee must be in accordance with the ability of the employee concerned. But if the job is beyond his ability or the job is far below his ability, the employee's seriousness and discipline will be low. Here lies the importance of the principle of the right man in the right place and the right man in the right job.
